Cures Woman's Weaknesses.

We refer to that boon to weak, nervous, suffering women known as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

"A remedy which invariably acts as a uterine invigorator * * * makes for normal activity of the entire reproductive system." He continues "in Helonias we have a medicament which more fully answers the above purposes than any other drug with which I am acquainted. In the treatment of diseases peculiar to women it is seldom that a case is seen which does not present some indication for this remedial agent." Dr. Fyfe further says: "The following are among the leading indications for Helonias (Unicorn root). Pain or aching in the back, with leucorrhœa; atonic (weak) condition of the reproductive organs of women, mental depression and irritability, associated with chronic diseases of the reproductive organs of women; constant sensation of heat in the region of the kidneys; menorrhagia (flooding), due to a weakened condition of the reproductive system; amenorrhœa (suppressed or absent monthly periods), arising from or accompanying an abnormal condition of the digestive organs and anæmic (thin blood) habit; dragging sensations in the extreme lower part of the abdomen."

If more or less of the above symptoms are present, no invalid woman can do better than take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, one of the leading ingredients of which is Unicorn root, or Helonias, and the medical properties of which it most faithfully represents.

Of Golden Seal root, another prominent ingredient of "Favorite Prescription," Prof. Finley Ellingwood, M. D., of Bennett Medical College, Chicago, says:

"It is an important remedy in disorders of the womb. In all catarrhal conditions * * * and general enfeeblement, it is useful."

Prof. John M. Scudder, M. D., late of Cincinnati, says of Golden Seal root:

"In relation to its general effects on the system, there is no medicine in use about which there is such general unanimity of opinion. It is universally regarded as the tonic useful in all debilitated states."

Prof. R. Bartholow, M. D., of Jefferson Medical College, says of Golden Seal:

"Valuable in uterine hemorrhage, menorrhagia (flooding) and congestive dysmenorrhœa (painful menstruation)."

Heart Strength!

Heart Strength, or Heart Weakness, means Nerve Strength, or Nerve Weakness—nothing more. Positively, not one weak heart in a hundred is, in itself, actually diseased. It is almost always a hidden tiny little nerve that really is all at fault. This obscure nerve—the Cardiac, or Heart Nerve—simply needs, and must have, more power, more stability, more controlling, more governing strength. Without that the Heart must continue to fail, and the stomach and kidneys also have these same controlling nerves.

This clearly explains why, as a medicine, Dr. Shoop's Restorative has in the past done so much for weak and ailing Hearts. Dr. Shoop first sought the cause of all this painful, palpitating, suffocating heart distress. Dr. Shoop's Restorative—this popular prescription—is alone directed to these weak and wasting nerve centers. It builds! Strengthens; it offers real, genuine heart help.

If you would have strong Hearts, strong digestion, strengthen these nerves—re-establish them as needed, with

KINDERGARTEN.

To the Editor of the Alexandria Gazette:

Dear Sir: At the request of an Alexandria organization in the interest of kindergarten work, I beg of you space for a few observations which are the result of personal experience, at least on the part of one mother.

Although the kindergarten is a German institution, originally, America is unquestionably the home today of the modern kindergarten; it has done a world of good here in all classes of society and the fact that in all cities of importance it is under the public school government and a part of the school system, is sufficient proof of this fact.

Frederick Froebel, the founder of it, gave his life to its discovery and promulgation. As a college professor, a high school teacher, a primary teacher he worked backward, instead of along the line of personal advancement in his endeavor to locate a deficiency in the preparation of students for their life work. At last he worked back, all along the line, to the nursery, and for twenty years wandered among the people, studying the minds of little children. Under lowly peasants' roofs, or in the shadow of ancient castle walls; in the summer fields, where babies kicked their dimpled legs in the shade while their mothers reaped in the sun; at festivals and christenings; in the quiet twilight when the tired peasant mother spent a sweet hour playing with her baby, Froebel made his observations. What all mothers in all classes loved to do, and what all babies loved to have done, he recognized as a primary need of humanity. Play—play, with a prophetic meaning; play, that should be symbolic of love and of work. Could the all too short play-time of life be prolonged and made symbolic of life's larger needs? And so Froebel formulated his "Mother Plays" and the other parts of his kindergarten system, arranging a scheme of symbolic education—a miniature citizenship. "A systematic sequence of experiences through which the child grows in self-knowledge, clear observation and conscious perception of a whole circle of relationships."

The games of the Kindergarten are pictures, symbols, to the child, of the work and experiences awaiting his maturity; tests of his strength; proofs of his talent and his power. In imitating the action of the father bird, seeking food for mate and nestlings, a sense of male responsibility dawns in the boy's mind; in imitating the brooding of the mother bird, divine forebodings of maturity wake in the little girl; in imitating the work of the carpenter, the farmer, the miller, the wheelwright, the wood-chopper, the child feels the joy of activity, the new born confidence in his own physical and mental competence. When he leads the game, he tastes the joy of precedence, and realizes the value of merit. In the constant atmosphere of gentleness, he learns courtesy. Music, flowers, sunshine, cleanliness, become familiar to him and dear. He is ashamed to be otherwise then his companions and surroundings are. Social relationships begin to present themselves to his consciousness; the beginnings of citizenship. He cannot always lead; he can only have his share; he isn't "It"—there are others. His wishes must be, somehow, adjusted to their wishes, his rights to their rights. Democracy is a strong point of the Kindergarten.

"Let all of us who came here in carriages, sit by ourselves," lisped one angelic looking child, in a Washington dancing class, to another. That is not the spirit of the Kindergarten; perhaps the Kindergarten would have counteracted in those children the evil influence of their own snobbish mammas.

It is wholesome for the child from a rich home to find that the child from a little home can outdo him, can weave and build and model more cleverly than he. And oh! what does it mean to the little lass whose gingham apron is patched and out-grown, when she is chosen to play mother-bird, or be the hostess in the lovely "visiting game." The kindergarten is pronouncedly democratic. It helps to take the nonsense out of the rich, it helps to build up the self-confidence in the poor.

It must never be forgotten that children are profoundly, unblushingly imaginative. "Playing things" is what they love to do, and the land of make-believe is their favorite camping ground.

Recognizing that this imaginative quality exists in children, we would make the wisest use of it for their own true development, and I know no thing better than the kindergarten to make the imagination useful, practical, evolutionary. What many mothers cannot do for their children, the kindergarten will do and can do—is begging to do! And the younger the children are, the more important they are. Services to them cannot be too highly estimated. Many educators insist that the first seven years are the most critical years of a life-time; some claim that the eminent qualities of character are fast in the child at the age of three. It is sometimes said that the kindergarten is artificial. Sometimes it is so. And that is unfortunate. Everything artificial is bad for children. It makes them want to put on airs and nit by themselves. It enervates the mental and moral character. But there is nothing artificial about a wholesome, well-conducted kindergarten—unless all schemes for training the mind and building up the character are to be considered artificial.

It has been said of the kindergarten: "A frivolous mind cannot understand it; A loving mind cannot oppose it; Only a coarse mind finds it ridiculous; A thoughtful mind alone tries to grasp its meaning."

We do not judge, nor dare to judge Christianity by the indifference or affectation of some so-called Christians, nor by the coldness and worldliness of some churches. We know that, despite all weakness and human inconsistency, it is divine. We do not judge art by the exaggerations of the ultra impressionists—we know that above and beyond and around all extremes of conception, art is the faithful representation of the true and beautiful in nature. We should not judge the kindergarten by its extravagances or failures, but by what it is at its best—useful, elevating, far-reaching, unwearied; a sweet, logical, influence in shaping the characters of our children. We may well be thankful to Frederich Froebel and Susan E. Blow and the many who have devoted their lives to formulating and promulgating the Kindergarten. It builds up ideals, its constant aim is to foster the finer purer instincts. Its whole meaning is altruistic. Love is the keynote of its scheme. And it is the salvation of the spoiled child; it is the refuge of the neglected child; it is the training school of the undeveloped child. It is the cheerful, sunshiny reform school of the naughty child. It teaches them all to think.

There are, alas, many kinds of mothers. And the mere fact of motherhood does not imply ability to bring up children. Maternity is not necessarily accompanied by self-sacrifice and intelligence.

The position of the child is about the same, whether the mother is hanging over a bridge-table all day, or over a wash-tub.

The foolish careless mother had better turn her little ones over to the Kindergarten, for their own sakes, a few hours each day. And the other mother, the over-worked, bread-winning, tried, worn-out mother, can find in the Kindergarten a wise and patient and experienced friend. It will help her solve her problems. It will relieve her of some of her cares, will do for her little ones some things which she is too self sh or too silly, too tired or too poor, to do for them herself.

It is self-evident that every thing must begin at its beginning, Work for the uplifting of humanity must begin with the young children; what is accomplished for the children of one generation is done for the voters, the workers, the mothers, of the coming generation.

We must go back, as Froebel did, all along the line from the Refuges for the Aged, from the Homes for Incurables, from the Houses of Refuge and Reform, back—back— as Ruskin says, "out of your long faces, into your long clothes!" Back to the babies! Keep them clean, keep them pure, teach them to love their little companions, to use their little fingers, to work in harmony with others, to know the spirit of fellowship, to realize their own potentialities, to find themselves, and God.

Open your Kindergartens! And train your teachers; train them in patience, in self sacrifice, in love, for a work is open to them which shall truly be eternal. Every Kindergarten teacher should be a practical idealist. Her work is bigger—though her wages may not be—than the work of the great lecturer on International Law or Social Development; for she is sowing the seeds of what shall be in the years to come, both Law and Civilization. The coming generations may find fewer houses of correction, fewer prisons necessary. The Kindergartens are helping humanity toward that "one Divine, far-off event." about which so many sentimentalize, for which so few deny themselves or exert themselves: The Kindergarten is one of the means by which that last, tender off-repeated command, "Feed my Lambs," shall finally be fulfilled, in spirit and in letter.

Let me not hope and pray alone for mine,
Those of my name and blood,
But for the coming of that reign divine
When even the least is good.

Let me not ask that to my own be given
The choicest daily bread;
But rather train my own to work for Heaven,
Till all Christ's lambs be fed.

Alexandria Gazette
SIC SEMPER TYRANNIS
AND VIRGINIA ADVERTISER

TUESDAY EVENING, NOV. 19, 1907.

IT HAS often been suggested of late that socialists and anarchists are watching the trend of labor movements in this and other countries for the purpose of breaking up present economic conditions and riding into notoriety and power upon issues concerning the working classes. This was evident in Norfolk yesterday when Victor I. Burger, a Milwaukee socialist, endeavored to get the American Federation of Labor to adopt a resolution providing that laboring men arm themselves during strike periods, the resolution declaring that it was the duty of the working man to adopt such a measure at a time when manufacturers resort to similar means for the protection of their property. The federation, scenting anarchy, very properly refused to pass such a resolution. The results of the adoption of such a measure can be imagined. While there are doubtless many reckless men in the ranks of organized labor, the majority, we prefer to believe, are animated by good sense and conservatism, and this was evidenced by the action of their representatives yesterday. Socialism is making rapid strides in this country, and while its advocates are now masquerading as mild-mannered reformers, there are lurking in the back ground many-headed monsters ready to assert themselves when their opportunity comes. When the mutterings of the French revolution were becoming more and more pronounced, the Girondists announced that they merely desired certain reforms, and they must not be regarded as regicides. The wave finally started and the Jacobins were soon on its crest. What has been done before is likely to be done again, and labor organizations should beware of dangerous affiliations.

DURING the money stringency which has existed in many of the banks throughout the country for the past month or so it is gratifying to note that all the banks in Alexandria are paying promptly all checks presented to them and that every depositor feels confident that he can draw his money whenever he feels so disposed. This has been the case with the banks of this city during the several panics and money stringencies of the past forty years, which is the best evidence that can possibly be presented of their soundness and good management.

IN Norfolk, yesterday, a man was committed to jail pending an examination on a warrant charging him with having threatened to kill another. It is said that he threatened to take the man's life because the latter would not indorse a note for $475 drawn on a city bank, and payable 60 days after date. This seems to be about the limit. If men are to be killed because they refuse to endorse notes, then few are safe.

DR. BALLIET, dean of the school of pedagogy of New York University, recommended the other day that a school savings bank be organized in every school and the money desposited at regular periods in actual savings banks. This suggests the inquiry of the New York Tribune: "Is this a deep laid plot of the high financiers to draw out hoarded money, or a blow at the molasses candy trust?"

SURG. GEN. RIXEY, of the navy, in his annual report recommends forbidding the use of cigarettes by all persons in the navy under twenty-one years of age. This recommendation should be adopted and should be made universal in its application. Cigarette smoking has been the ruin of thousands of young men and now the women are acquiring the habit.

A MASSACHUSETTS judge yesterday decided that a wife who persistently rummages in her husband's pockets is guilty of cruelty and can be divorced. A Daniel come to judgment!

TO CONTINUE EXPOSITION.

That the Jamestown Exposition will open in some shape next summer is almost a certainty, though whether it will be on a large or small scale is yet to be determined. That the national government will do all it can to aid the enterprise was evidenced yesterday, when the officials in charge of the government exhibit were notified not to begin packing up on the last day of this month, as per original instructions, but to let the exhibit remain intact until further notice.

Today there was a conference of a number of hotel men, transportation men and capitalists who discussed the feasibility of organizing a new company to take over the old concern and to operate the exposition next summer. Many of the large business men of Norfolk are much in favor of the continuation of the exposition. They declare that while not a financial success the exposition has attracted much attention, brought the city into greater prominence, made more business, and that, taking it as a whole, they consider that the exposition has not been nearly so much of a failure as is generally believed.

The opening of the New York Horse Show yesterday brought out a good attendance in both afternoon and evening. Many persons prominent in society were present.

From Washington.

[Correspondence of the Alexandria Gazette.]

Washington, Nov. 19.

Today's developments gave further substantial assurances of the pronounced success of the new financial plan adopted by the administration. The Treasury Department has already received several bids for Panama canal bonds, and a number of applications for the certificates of indebtedness. The latter are from individuals, who say they are looking for a gilt-edged investment. Although treasury officials decline to make public the identity of the applicants, they express their belief that the $100,000,000 of certificates of indebtedness will be largely over subscribed. Local bankers say their individual deposits have increased since yesterday.

Several propositions for safe-guarding United States ports from disease epidemics are being considered for presentation by the American delegation to the International Sanitary Conference of the American Republics to be held in Mexico City next month.

The Philippine government has gone into the insurance business. An act has been put into effect by the commission, appropriating $125,000 as the basis of a fund with which to insure public buildings and government property in the island. In addition, provision is made for an annual appropriation of $25,000 until the fund shall have reached $250,000.

The President in his message will recommend regarding the currency laws: That every dollar must be as good as if based upon gold; that currency must not be based on general assets; that segregated assets of unquestioned value must secure the new currency.

At Bennings the first race today was won by Eirebraud, 1-1; Eminola, second, 8-5; Umbrella, third, 4-1.

FEDERATION OF LABOR.

The American Federation of Labor at Norfolk yesterday adopted, without a dissenting vote, the report of the special committee on the injunction suit of the Buck Stove and Range Company against the American Federationist, the official organ of the Federation, which printed the names of the complainant company in the list of those corporations which it is alleged are unfair to union labor.

The Federation proposes to fight this and other like suits which might arise. To meet the expenses of the contest each member of organized labor affiliated with the American Federation of Labor will be assessed one cent a month. The defense of these suits is left to President Gompers and the executive council.

The Federation went on record as favoring the absolute exclusion from the United States and its possessions of all immigrants from Asia and the islands of the Pacific. The Sixieth Congress will be appealed to for laws making eight hours a universal day's work for all Panama canal employment.

Yesterday afternoon's meeting was the stormiest since the opening of the convention. The contention began by the attempt of Victor I. Burger, socialist, of Milwaukee, to introduce a resolution declaring that, in case of a strike the laboring man is as much entitled to provide himself with arms for protection as is the manufacturer in the protection of his property. This was held by many delegates as verging on anarchy, and a stormy protest arose. Burger had his followers with him, and they attempted to force the resolution through, but there was stern opposition and a nonconcurrence ended a two hours' fight. Burger made an impassioned speech.

The federation adopted resolution declaring itself against the use of the terms "open" and "closed" shop, declaring "union" and "nonunion" should be used instead; pledging all possible aid to workingmen of Cuba; urging an organization of women wage earners, declaring for universal federation of trades unions that will bring international peace quicker than an international peace court with no backing; calling upon Congress for legislation to prevent evils of injunction rule, and opposing all candidates for office not opposing injunction rule.

Resolutions calling for aid in organization of all streetpavers in America were received. The committee on injunction refused to receive resolutions calling for an increase of the salary of its organizers to $6 per day.

A feature of the day was an address by Rev. Charles M. Stelzle, in charge of the Presbyterian Church's labor departmental work.

METHODIST CONFERENCE.

A warm debate on a resolution offered by Rev. Dr. James Cannon, jr., protesting against the removal of the motto "In God We Trust" from United States coins, was a feature of yesterday's session of the Virginia Southern Methodist Conference in Petersburg. Dr. Cannon and Rev. W. Asbury Christian spoke very earnestly in favor of the resolution, while Dr. B. F. Lipscomb made a strong argument to the effect that it would be undignified for the Conference to pay so much attention to the matter. The resolution was made the order of the day for this morning.

The report of the committee on Sabbath observance, recommended the adoption of resolutions urging ministers to emphasize the sanctity of the Sabbath, opposed any legislation to weaken present laws as to Sunday freight trains, requested the legislature to perfect laws against Sunday labor, and, at the request of the International Ministerial Association of Richmond, appointed Revs. E. H. Rawlings and S. P. Jones a committee to act with representatives of other denominations concerning Sabbath observance, which committee is to report back to Conference for its approval of any plan that may be adopted.

The report of the Sunday School board, showed total expenditures during the year to have been $1,412 and present balance $575.

Among some interesting statistics submitted by the joint board of finance, were the following: Conference collections this year, $14,591.55; for bishops, $3,681.55; educational extension, $2,572.71; church extension, $6,810.91; Randolph-Macon College, $3,680.31; annual Conference expenses, $1,249.18; domestic missions, $13,473.66; foreign missions, $26,653 80, and several other items, all showing a grand total of $76,670.47, which is a net increase of $5,648.22 over 1906.

Dr. Lipscomb announced that the Conference would meet at Epworth Church, Norfolk, next year.

Passed the Examination.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 19.—Of the thirty-three young men who applied to the Supreme Court for license to practice law only seventeen passed. Among the successful ones were H. Noel Garner and Richard B. Washington, of Alexandria.

The Bradley Trial.

Washington, D. C., November 19.—Attracted by the announcement that Mrs. Bradley would probably today go upon the witness stand to tell her life-story, a curious crowd mainly women, thronged the corridors of the District court house long before court opened at 10 o'clock.

"It will be worse than death itself," she said before leaving the jail, "to go over the past and tell all its terrible secrets. I did not want to do it if it could possibly be helped. But my attorneys think it necessary, and it would be unfair to these men who have worked so hard for me, if I should refuse. I shall try to bear up bravely. But it has been awful enough to hear the things that have been brought out in the trial without having to tell them myself."

As Mrs. Bradley entered the court room she apparently realized that the trying ordeal was at hand. She was more nervous than usual, but the determination with which she faced the situation was evident in her demeanor.

The defense first called Mrs. Josephine Tighe, a newspaper writer, to the stand. She testified that Mrs. Bradley, after the shooting, showed unusual excitement when told that Mrs. Adams, the mother of Maude Adams, was in town.

"At this time," said Mrs. Tighe, "her eyes had a dead fishy look and she constantly pulled and clutched at the bedclothes. To me she seemed insane."

Judge Powers, chief counsel for the defense, then said quietly: "Call Mrs. Anna Bradley."

With firm step, the frail defendant walked forward and took her place in the witness chair.

Mrs. Bradley spoke in a low voice, scarcely loud enough to be heard by the jury. It was necessary, on several occasions, for the court reporter to repeat her answers in a louder voice.

Despite the strain and stress of the occasion, she smiled as she addressed Judge Powers during the examination, regaining confidence as she went on.

Mrs. Bradley commenced her narrative by telling of her birth in Missouri 38 years ago. Her education was received in Denver, Col. When 15 years of age she began her struggle for life as a bookkeeper and cashier in a Denver clothing store. She told of receiving an injury to her head when a child. "The spot is to this day sensitive to the touch," she said. In April 1890, she moved to Salt Lake City, where ever since has been her home. She said she married Clarence Bradley September 20, 1893, in Salt Lake City. Matthew Bradley was born October 7, 1894, and Margaret, March 20, 1898.

She said she was secretary of the State republican committee from 1900 to 1902; that her married life had been unhappy; that she and her husband ceased to live together in the summer of 1898, and were divorced in December, 1905. She knew ex-Senator Arthur Brown, having met him in 1892 with her uncle, William H. Ryan.

"I became very well acquainted with Senator Brown in 1898" continued the defendant: "Our friendship grew into very intimate relations and later ripened into affection" Asked to describe the nature of the acquaintance, she broke down completely, and, sobbing, said: "I can't, I can't." Many women in the room wept openly, and men turned away to hide their emotion. "What was the manner of Senator Brown toward you?" asked Judge Powers, "I can not describe it." "Was it tender and affectionate?" "Oh, yes, always." "Did he make any protestations of love?" "Yes, sir." "Did you love him." "Yes sir." "At any time did you have a child born?" "Yes, sir." "When did you enter into intimate relations?" "In January, 1899." "Will you tell the jury how you came to enter into those relations?" Her answer was sobbed to the jury. "The Senator had told me much of his life. He was a very unhappy man. I told him that our life would lead only to sorrow, to grief; never, never, he told me for we would go through life together, no matter what happened. I then avoided him for months. He was a strange man. He came to my house at unseemly hours. One day he came and said: 'Darling, we are going through life together. I want you to have a son.' Several months later a son was born." "Where was this child christened?" asked the attorney. "At Salt Lake City." "Was Senator Brown present?" "He held the child." "What was the child christened?" "Arthur Brown." "After this child was born, what were the relations between you and Senator Brown?" "I didn't see very much of him. It was not our intention to continue the relation. He wished to get a divorce from his wife but I said 'never.' I did not want to break up his home, but it was so wretched that he came to me many times, and said, 'Oh, child you are the only bright spot of my life.'" "Is it a fact that your relations continued?" "They did" "Did you believe in his affection?" "I did not believe it possible for any man to ask a woman to have a child and not to be a father to it." "Our relations continued," she said, and in June, 1901, she became aware that she was about to become a mother again. When she ascertained that fact, she continued, the Senator operated upon her. "Was the loss of that child at your suggestion?" she was asked. "Oh, no," she replied. Then she explained: "At that time our relations had become known. The Senator wanted to break up his home. I would not let him. I did not know what to do. "Did the loss of the child cause you any mental distress" "Oh yes. I knew it was wrong, but its so hard to describe one's feelings." When Senator Brown was turned down by his party's caucus for re-election to the United States Senate, he came to her, said the witness. When he informed her of his defeat, she said she broke down and cried. "I am going on with you now. Their is nothing to stop us," the Senator told her.

"At the birth of the second son, was Senator Brown there?" "He came when the baby was two weeks old, saying he was so proud of his son. He was delighted. "What were your feelings when in his presence?" "He controlled me absolutely." "Were you happy or unhappy in his presence?" "Very, very, happy." "What did you think of his intellectual attainments?" "They were very, very, great. He was a masterful man. Kind to his friends, vindictive toward his enemies. He dominated every one." "Did Senator Brown ever make any plans for Arthur?" "He said, I must make him justice of the Supreme Court of the United States."

Senator Brown, she said, told her that the only common interest between himself and Mrs. Brown was their political aspirations. He wanted her to leave Salt Lake, to keep away from the scandal of the divorce that he proposed securing. "Divorced, he was to marry me," she explained. Mrs. Bradley then told of leaving Salt Lake, going first to Washington with the Senator, who had a case before the supreme court. Then she went to Los Angeles, and then to Grand Junction, Col., "Do you remember Christmas 1901?" asked Judge Powers. "He came over to Grand Junction and spent a couple of days Christmas time. He came to see me every ten days at least." Did you ever read together?" "Yes. We were fond of Burns and Tennyson Tennyson more than any other Emerson at times." "Did he say anything of progress in severing his marital relations during these visits!"

"He assured me it would all be compromised. He said it hinged on a property settlement. I said give it to Mrs and Mrs. Brown. I don't want any of it." She told of a trip to Washington with Senator Brown and Alice Brown, a daughter by his first marriage. "How old is Alice?" "One year younger than myself." "How were you registed at the hotel?" "I do not know." Mrs. Bradley then spoke of trips with Senator Brown to Antioch College, Dayton, Chicago and other places. "At Antioch College, Yellow Springs, he introduced me as his wife, Mrs. Brown," said the witness. "What was the Senator's conduct toward you? "Always loving." While Senator Brown was away from her, they communicated by means of a special code.

"He said to me" continued Mrs. Bradley, that he would always be with me; that he would lay down everything in life for me." "Mrs. Bradley, with the children, later went to live on Brown's farm near Salt Lake. "In 1902 did you learn that you were likely to become a mother again?" "Yes."

"Was the child born?" "No, for the same reason as in 1901." Mrs. Bradley had testified that Senator Brown had operated upon her in that year. She told of a conference between Senator and Mrs. Brown, Judge Henderson, Col. Fitlock and herself, when the Senator made this statement to Col. Fitlock: "I say to you, my bitterest enemy, that I will make Mrs. Brown get a divorce within a week. If she does not get a divorce, I will protect Mrs. Bradley and will marry her."

Two points were brought out in support of the insanity plea—the injury to her head when a child, and the effects of an illegal operation performed by the Senator. Mrs. Bradley, once the ordeal of her examination was well underway, became more confident. That her testimony operated with great effect upon the jury there is no question. When court adjourned for the luncheon recess, Mrs. Bradley had not yet reached the events of the last year at the Raleigh Hotel, in Washington.

At the opening of the afternoon session only the year 1903 had been reached. Up to that time she had been happy in her love for Brown, though recognizing that it was illicit. The latter portion of her story deals with them and Brown's change of attitude leading to the final abandonment and the shooting.

"An agreement regarding the proposed divorce was reached by Mrs. Brown and the Senator at Pocatelle," said Mrs. Bradley, taking up the incident of the meeting in the hotel. "Afterward I went back to the farm at Salt Lake where my relations with the Senator were pleasant."

Soon, however, Brown's visits began to fall off. Suddenly, she received, without a note of warning, news of Brown's desertion. "He called me up on the telephone" she said, "and told me to get off the farm, and that he would never speak to me again. I left at once, and when I arrived in town, I learned the story of his reconciliation with Mrs. Brown." "At that time did you expect to become a mother?" "Yes." Later she had an interview with Brown.

Then she told of Brown's desertion of her; of their arraignment for adultery; that he had said he was not the father of the child, etc.

Mrs. Bradley pleaded guilty to the indictment against her for adultery but was never sentenced.

Work of a Dynamiter.

New York, Nov. 19.—Hurling a bomb from a passing third avenue "L" train, an unknown dynamiter wrecked the lower floor of a Third avenue tenement house today and escaped down the stairway of the Twenty-third street station before Policeman King, who saw the act, could head him off.

It was the second attempt on the same building within a few months. Wing's Chinese laundry, on the first floor, is believed to have been today's target. Owing to the dynamiter's poor aim, however, the bomb landed in the basement of the furniture store of B. May, where it caused several hundred dollars' damage. The building was set on fire, but the flames were extinguished with small loss.

Seventy-five tenants were thrown into a panic and came tumbling out in their night clothing in such haste that several were hurt by falls or being trampled upon.

A bomb was thrown over a transom of Wing's laundry last July. He says he belongs to no Chinese society, has no known enemies and cannot account for attempts to injure him.

Secretary Taft Starts for St. Petersburg.

Vladivostok, Nov. 19.—Secretary of War Taft and his party left Vladivostok on the Trans-Siberian Railway for St. Petersburg this afternoon. A magnificiently furnished private car was put at their disposa'. Secretary Taft dined last night with Gen. Publeff, who figured prominently in the Japanese-Russian war. Though there was nothing affected in the cordiality with which the American secretary was treated, there is no doubt the Russian authorities in Vladivostok are heartily glad to have him gone.

The military and naval forces here fairly seeth with discontent and it would naturally have been exceedingly unpleasant to have had an official visitor from abroad with another mutiny.

Two hundred of those prominent in the last uprisings are reported to have been executed a day or two before Taft's arrival.

Strike Averted.

Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 19 —The threatened strike of the switchman on railroads runing out of here has been averted for the time being, if not for good, following the action of National Grand Master Hawley. He has directed that no action be taken until sanctioned by him, and is in conference in Chicago today with a committee representing local unions. At the same time the switchmen of the Lackawanna road have been restrained by federal Judge Hazel from violating the contract they have with the company and they must show why they should not be permanently enjoined. The general manager of the companies declare under no circumstances will they grant the men's demands for increased pay and shorter hours.

Passenger Trains Collide.

Matoon, Ill., Nov. 19.—Trains No. 12 and 19, both fast mail trains on the Vandalia line, were in a collision at Vevay Park at 3 o'clock this morning. The accident was due to fog. No. 12 left St. Louis at 2:30 a. m. No. 19 left here at 11:35 p. m. The trains are both through New York St. Louis trains.

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 19.—The local general offices of the Vandalia report none killed in the Vevay Park wreck. The company reports thirty injured. A mail clerk will die. The general offices have no further details.

A dispatch from St. Louis says Engineer Joseph McClellan, of Vandilia passenger train No. 12, was killed in the collision.

Steamer Aground.

New York, Nov. 19.—With two life saving crews standing by to render aid if needed, the big British freighter Regulus, Captain Wakeman, is hard aground twenty miles east of the Fire Island light, having struck during a a dense fog early today. Her crew of eighteen is engaged trying to save the ship. The ship is loaded with lumber, and in the fog got out of her course and struck the bar. As she did the cargo shifted aft and there was danger of the crew being washed overboard. Signals of distress brought the life saving crews and they are still standing by.

Prospective Prohibition Candidate.

Guthrie, Nov. 19 —Friends of Governor C N. Haskell maintain that he is quietly nursing a presidential bee, grooming himself as the logical democratic candidate in 1912, if not sooner, on a platform declaring for national prohibition. As the first Governor of the first State to include prohibition in its campaign issues, he believes the prohibition wave will have so covered the entire nation by that time as to demand a presidential candidate on such a platform.

Proposed Inland Waterway.

Philadelphia, Nov. 19.—The project of an inland waterway from Massachusetts to North Carolina is being advocated today by delegates representing seventeen States. Much of the route already exists and it would require simply canaling certain bays and streams and constructing connecting links to complete the project. The route, it is claimed, will save millions in coast freights and reduce the water distance to the south. Among the speakers was Congressman Lassiter of Virginia.

Murderer Electrocuted.

New York, Nov. 19.—John Wenzel walked to his death in Sing Sing prison yesterday without a tremor. He took his seat in the electric chair calmly, and at 5:51 o'clock the current was turned on. Three minutes later he was pronounced dead. Wenzel was executed for killing George Spatz in the latter's Brooklyn saloon, May 6, 1906.

The Druce Case.

London November 19.—Charles Dickens would doubtless be a witness in the Druce case, if alive. Miss Mary Robinson told the court today that the novelist assured her the Duke of Portland and Charles Thomas Druce were one and the same individual. It is conceded on both sides that Dickens knew both Druce and the Duke. It had been hinted that he knew the secret of the Duke's alleged dual life and based his unfinished novel of Edwin Drood on the case.

Miss Robinson is the first witness, however, who has explicitly stated she was familiar with the deception it is asserted the Duke practiced. She said yesterday she herself knew that Portland posed as Druce and her story today that Dickens told her the same thing was merely an amplification of her previous testimony. The woman was the first witness called to the stand today to complete her unfinished account of her life in Welbeck Abbey as the Duke of Portland's secretary. She pleaded lapse of memory several times, complaining that she was greatly handicapped by the loss of her diary, which she says was stolen from her recently. Robinson told today why his grace assumed the roll of a small London tradesman and the name of Charles Thomas Druce—he wanted to marry below his own station in life.

Bank to Reopen.

New York, Nov. 19.—The Twelfth Ward Bank is preparing to open tomorrow for business. Depositors have agreed to leave 75 per cent. of their present deposits with the institution for the next four months. Control of the institution has been secured by Warner Van Norden, a heavy stockholder.

New York Stock Market.

New York, Nov. 19.—The good effect on the treasury relief proposition seemed to have passed away over night and with the opening of the market today there was renewed liquidation of speculative holdings combined with aggressive selling, that caused declines ranging from ½ to 1¼ all around the room Bear selling most prominent in several shares. London operations were small government bonds unchanged; other bonds lower.

The feature of the market in the second hour was the heavy selling of Rock Island issues had a demoralizing effect on the general market causing hurried selling of other important railroad stocks.

Later there was increased pressure in many more active stocks and further declines were recorded in nearly everything traded in.

SCHOOL MONEYS.

The department of public instruction has completed the apportionment of the school fund "on account of the appropriation by the general assembly under an act approved March 9, 1906, and the accumulated interest on investments of the literary fund."

The superintendent will issue instructions that this amount, apportioned to each school district, is to be applied exclusively to the pay of teachers of primary and grammar grades. The following shows the amount for each county and city in this section of the State:

Alexandria city, $2,424.20; Alexandria county, $1,154 44; Clarke, $1,310.06; Culpeper, $3,324, .44; Fairfax, $3,958.70, Fauquier, $4,788.26; Fredericksburg, $945.50; King George, $1,508.46; Loudoun, $3,490.60; Orange, $2,574 86; Page, $2,537.04; Prince William, $2,300.82; Rappahannock, $1,552.48; Stafford, $1,707.48; Westmoreland, $1,764.52; Winchester, $794 22.

Secretary Stearns, of the department of public instruction, said yesterday that he believed the State would get at least $1,500 000 for the schools this year. He called attention to the fact that $1 out of every capitation tax paid went to the school fund, and that the State tax for school purposes is ten cents on each $100 of property. The increase in the valuation of personal property this year is expected to reach at least enough to bring the total from both sources to $1,500,000. The valuations of railroad and kindred properties has been material and capitation taxes are being paid more generally than for some time. If these figures are reached, and there is every reason to believe that they will be, the schools will receive approximately $50,000 to $75,000 more than ever before in the history of the State.

ATTEMPTS AT SUICIDE.

Claiming that she would rather die than endure alleged whippings and mistreatment from her father, Olive Kendrick, nineteen years old, of Washington, attempted suicide while at the home of Mrs. Mamie Stever, yesterday afternoon by inhaling illuminating gas. The girl was discovered when almost lifeless, and was hurried to the Casualty Hospital where she revived. "Because I stayed in bed until quarter after 6, my father whipped and beat me with a carriage whip," Miss Kendrick said. "I told him I was doing more work than any one of my sisters, but he claimed that I did not, and said I had better try to find some kind of employment somewhere else."

Suffering from a serious bullet wound in the abdomen, which is said to have been inflicted in an attempt at suicide, Charles Harris, colored, ten years old, was carried to Washington from Manassas last evening and hurried to the Emergency Hospital. The surgeons found that the bullet had gone completely through the boy's body, and that his chances for recovery were small. The boy's father, who carried him to Washington, states that his son had attempted to kill himself because he had been whipped.

EARTHQUAKE SHOCKS.

The Provinces of Reggio di Calabria, Italy, was visited by another severe earthquake at 2:20 o'clock yesterday afternoon. It was especially severe at Brancaleone, Ferruzzano and Bianco, and a number of houses were shattered or damaged. The people who had summed up courage to return to their homes after the quake of October 27, again became panic-stricken and fled a second time to the country. Some of them were camped last night in the open air, while others have taken refuge in subterranean grottoes. Men and women, rich and poor, priests and soldiers are thrown together and the devout are raising prayers to the Madonna and the saints to succor them in their misery. The gravity of the situation is increased by the inclemency of the weather.

A second violent shock was experienced in Reggio di Calabria at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The people were thrown into a state of consternation, which was added to by the stories of further damages at Ferruzzano.

AN OLD IDEA.

Shown to be Absolutely False by Modern Science.

People used to think that baldness was one of those things which are handed down from generation to generation, from father to son—just like a family heirloom.

Science has shown the falseness of this belief by proving that baldness itself is not a constitutional disease, but the result of a germ invasion of which only Herpicide can effectually rid the scalp.

Washing only cleans the scalp of Dandruff, it doesn't kill the germs.

"Destroy the cause you remove the effect."

Newbro's Herpicide will do this in every case. It is also a delightful dressing.

THE LATE ROBERT BELL.

Acting Coroner Glaz-brook yesterday issued a certificate of death by suicide in the case of Robert Bell, of this city, who was found dead with the gas turned on in his room, 1135 9th street, Washington. The body was found by Mrs. Margaret Montgomery, the landlady, surrounded by bits of torn letters. Despondency is attributed as the motive for the suicide. The deceased had been deaf since childhood, and also suffered from an impediment in his speech, the result of serious illness. Recently he had been without work, and, the Washington police say, had intimated to friends that he was tired of living.

Mr. Bell's remains were brought to this city, and the funeral will take place from the residence of Mr. L. McK. Ball, 513 Duke street, tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock.

THE STOLEN COPPER AND BRASS.

James Burke and John Burgess, who were arrested in this city yesterday while in the possession of 2,600 pounds of copper and brass, believed to have been stolen in Washington, were turned over to the authorities of that city later in the day. The police are looking for others who are alleged to be implicated in the theft. Burgess, who had charge of the wagon in which the copper and brass was brought to this city, was released after he reached Washington, but Burke was held.

FINED FIVE DOLLARS.

The expression was used by the young man in talking to an acquaintance and is a common one with many of the younger generation.

NOTICE
ALEXANDRIA PUBLIC.

I have this day accepted the agency for the Patent Fin Hot Water Heater. It is now on exhibition in my store where you can inspect same. It is the most modern up-to-date Gas-heated Hot Water Radiator in the World.

When it is considered that we must depend on some method of artificially heating our homes and public places practically half the year, and that during this time our life is largely spent indoors in an artifical atmosphere and temperature, it certainly seems natural that we should use methods of heating that would not endanger health (by violating Nature's laws of physics and physiology), nor be needlessly expensive and wasteful. Yet, the fact is, a very small proportion of our homes and business places are healthfully, comfortably and economically heated.

The latest Fin Hot Water Radiator does this or otherwise you may return it. Come in and let us explain it

Handsome Separate Skirts.

We direct attention to our present impressive display of Women's Separate Skirts, which, notwithstanding the popularity of other modes of costumes, continue to be in general demand.

We brought over from Europe some very handsome Skirts, the plain effects and very elaborate models, to be worn with the exquisite Linegerie Waists, which we selected at the same time, and which are now displayed with the Skirts.

SPECIAL SALE OF MEN'S SILK CRAVATS,

A prominent neckwear manufacturer, finding an accumulation of short ends or cuttings of silks used in his half-dollar scarfs, made up the entire lot into this season's shape four-in-hand and closed them out to us. The quality of silk, the color tones, together with the great diversity of patterns, constitute a most attractive offering. The White Line.

The late David Christie Murray on one occasion told the story of the champion printer's error of his experience to this effect:

"I wrote at the close of the story of 'Grace Forbeach': 'Are there no troubles now?' the lover asks. 'Not one, dear Frank, not one.' And then, in brackets, thus [ ] I set the words [White line]. This was a technical instruction to the printer and meant that one line of space should be left clear. The genius who had the copy in hand put the lover's speech in type correctly and then, setting it out as if it were a line of verse, he gave me:

"Not one, dear Frank, not one white line!"

"It was a custom in the printing office to suspend a leather medal by a leather boot lace round the neck of the man who had achieved the prize betise of the year. It was somewhere about midsummer at this time, but it was instantly unanimously resolved that nothing better than this would or could be done by anybody, and the medal was presented at once."—Westminster Gazette.

The Quicker Way.

"There goes a man," observed a steamship agent as he directed attention to a surly looking individual who had just engaged passage for Europe, "whose efforts are devoted to constructing short cuts in business methods and in eliminating all time consuming men and their propositions from his busy existence. He is a man of very few words.

"Some years ago this gentleman crossed the ocean and had a very unpleasant trip. One morning a sympathetic passenger offered him a lemon, expressing a sincere wish that it would give relief.

"The pale traveler seized the lemon, hurled it viciously into the ocean and growled:

"'This is a quicker way than the other.'"

A Curious Tree.

In the village of Clynnog, Wales, there is an old cottage, formerly a country tavern, upon the roof of which there is a full grown sycamore tree. About fifty years ago a seedling from a neighboring churchyard, where other sycamores are growing, found a resting place in the corner of the wall above a slab of stone over the entrance to the building. The young tree thrived for a time on the small quantity of soil collected in the corner of the walls and finally forced its roots downward through the walls into the earth below. From the outside no trace of the roots can be seen.

Cutting Big Diamonds.

Big diamonds lose a great deal in the cutting. The Kohinoor was reduced by an unskillful stonecutter from 793⅝ carats to 280 carats, a second cutting brought it down to 186 1-16 carats and a third to 106 1-16 carats, or less than a seventh of its original size. The original weight of the Pitt or Regent diamond was 410 carats, but in the hands of the cutter two-thirds disappeared, while the Star of the South, which was picked up in a river by a negress, lost a little over half its weight by cutting.

German Sportsmen.

Half a million sportsmen in Germany kill annually 40,000 head of red and fallow deer, 200,000 roebuck, 4,000,000 hares, 4,000,000 partridges and 400,000 wild duck, in all some 25,000,000 kilograms of wild game of a value of 25,000,000 marks, or $5,000,000, forming nearly 1 per cent of the total meat supply of Germany.—C. G. Schillings' "In Darkest Africa."

Breaking Her In.

Geraldine—I want you to understand before I marry you that I believe in the equality of the sexes. Gerald—All right. I was intending to give the minister two guineas, so you'd better hand over one.—Illustrated Bits.

No Room.

Scribbler—My new novel is entitled "What I Told My Wife." Ruyter—Why don't you call it, "What I Didn't Tell My Wife?" Scribbler—Publishers limited me to one volume.—Exchange.

Inflated.

Artist (indicating an exquisite marine view)—This picture is valued at $50,000. Stockbroker—Well, well! There's a lot of water in it, isn't there?—Spokane Sportsman-Review.

Biliousness and Constipation.

For years I was troubled with biliousness and constipation, which made life miserable for me. My appetite failed me. I lost my usual force and vitality. Pepsin preparations and catartics only made matters worse. I do not know where I should have been today had I not tried Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. The tablets relieve the ill feeling at once, strengthen the digestive functions, helping the system to do its work naturally.—MRS. ROSA POTTS, Birmingham, Ala. These tablets are for sale by Gibson & Timberman and W. F. Creighton & Co.

A Significant Prayer.

"May the Lord help you make Bucklen's Arnica Salve known to all," writes J. G. Jenkins, of Chapel Hill, N. C. It quickly took the pain out of a felon for me and cured it in a wonderfully short time." Best on earth for sores, burns and wounds. 25c at all drug stores.

The finest Coffee Substitute ever made, has recently been produced by Dr. Shoop, of Racine, Wis. You don't have to boil it twenty or thirty minutes. "Made in a minute," says the doctor. "Health Coffee" is really the closest Coffee Imitation ever yet produced. Not a grain of real Coffee in it either. Health Coffee Imitation is made from pure toasted cereals or grains, with malt, nuts, etc. Really it would fool an expert—were he to unknowingly drink it for coffee. Sold by E. S. Leadbeater & Sons.

NOTICE TO STATE TAXPAYERS.

I am now prepared to receive the State taxes for the year 1907.

A Hard Debt to Pay

"I owe a debt of gratitude that can never be paid off," writes G. S. Clark of Westfield, Iowa, "for my rescue from death, by Dr. King's New Discovery. Both lungs were so seriously affected that death seemed imminent, when I commenced taking New Discovery. The ominous dry, hacking cough quit before the first bottle was used, and two more bottles made a complete cure." Nothing has ever equaled New Discovery for coughs, colds and all throat and lung complaints. Guaranteed by all druggist. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

FOR OVER SIXTY YEARS.

AN OLD AND WELL-TRIED REMEDY.—Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used for over sixty years by millions of mothers for their children while teething with perfect success. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, cures wind colic and is the best remedy for Diarrhœa. Is pleasant to the taste. Sold by druggists in every part of the world. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Its value is incalculable. Be sure and ask for Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup and take no other kind.

Guaranteed under the food and drugs act June 30th, 1906. Serial number 1098

Ely's Cream Balm has been tried and not found wanting in thousands of homes all over the country. It has won a place in the family medicine closet among the reliable household remedies, where it is kept at hand for use in treating cold in the head just as soon as some member of the household begins the preliminary sneezing or snuffling. It gives immediate relief and a day or two's treatment will put a stop to a cold which might, if not checked, become chronic and run into a bad case of catarrh.
